

November 2006

To: The Steinert Wrestling Community

My Motivation in Wrestling:

For starters, the love for the sport. To me wrestling is far superior than any other contest. Wrestling excellence is the ultimate in individual and team achievement in athletics. It takes commitment to attain it. I also love helping young athletes seek this excellence, and enjoy watching them squeeze out every ounce of talent to be successful on the mat. Lastly, I love the competition. A clean, hard fought wrestling match is the most honest of any athletic contests. There is nobody to blame and no panel of judges to bias the score. It's you versus him!

I am very excited about this year because of excellent freshman turn-out, and that this year's varsity line-up, which is young, but very experienced. I believe that this is a combination for success in our wrestling program. In order for us to get to the top, we must work together for a common purpose. You must set high standards and be willing to work to achieve them. True Champions are the guys who get the most out of themselves and others; they strive to be great, and they often achieve greatness.

Coach Jankos